Council Notes

The last meeting of the Student Council was held on November 17. The first item of business considered by the council was the constitutional amendments. After a five minute recess, which allowed the councilmen to have a last-minute discussion, the vote was taken and the amendments were unanimously passed. They were to be voted upon by the student body in the following week's elections.

New Business

Dick Moore, President of the Senior Class, introduced a motion to set up a committee to look into the feasibility of drawing up a series of regulations to affect control of the classes by the Student Council. After much debating, the motion was called to question. The vote was eleven pro, five con (the entire junior class delegation), and one abstention.

Proposed Ordinances

At its next meeting the Council will consider the following ordinances which, if passed, and signed by Fr. Beatty, become official college regulations. The first ordinance will require a budget report from each activity at the end of the school year, and the second will seek recognition of the Loyola College ring sold at a downtown jewelry store. Both of these ordinances are posted in full on the Council bulletin board on the balcony of the Student Union Bldg.

Loyola To Present Joint Concert With Dunbarton December 10

By Dave Schroeder

On Sunday, December 10, the Loyola College Glee Club will present its annual Christmas Concert in the Loyola College Chapel at 7:00 p. m. This year Loyola's Glee Club will sing with the Glee Club of Dunbarton College of the Holy Cross, Washington, D. C.

Miss Virginia Reinecke directs Loyola's Glee Club in a recent practice session.

Miller Elected President; Five Amendments Passed

Last Wednesday, November 26, the fall elections were held on campus with approximately 75% of the freshman class participating. The class of 1965 elected Anthony O. Miller, president; Bernard J. Vondersmith, vice-president; James F. Coyle, treasurer; Dennis E. Keating secretary; and William E. Scholtes, student council representative. The student body as a whole passed the five proposed constitutional amendments with only a small election turnout.

In the race for the presidency Tony Miller, a B. S. science major, defeated Pat Creaney by a large margin. Filling the position of vice president will be Bernie Vondersmith, an A. B. modern language major, who defeated his four opponents, Tom O'Connell, Stu Schoenfeld, Mel Rosen, and Vince Petroniero.

Jim Coyle, a B. S. science major, defeated Rich Anderson and John Mitcherling to be elected treasurer by a slight margin.

Council Racer

Bill Scholtes, an A. B. modern language major was elected student council representative by a large majority. He defeated Mike Giangrandi and Bill Mitcherling.

Denny Keating, an A. B. modern language major, was elected secretary on a write-in ballot, defeating Jeff Friedman, Christ Nohe, and several other candidates.

Amendments

The five constitutional amendments were passed by a vote of 220 to 64, with two absentions. The turnout was small.

Dunbarton's club is directed by Sister Marie Andrew, C. S. C. Miss Virginia Reinecke directs the Loyola College Glee Club.

The combined chorus will sing several short works including "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson, "Bethlehem Dawn" by Peter Warlock, and Charpentier's "Song of the Birth of the Lord."

When Loyola's Glee Club sings alone Miss Reinecke usually accompanies them on the piano, but at this performance they will be accompanied by Celia Sugong, Joanne Cohen, Zoltan Szabo, and Anne Worthington as violinists and Janet Rayburn as cellist. Miss Reinecke will direct the combined groups.

Mixer to Follow

There is no charge for admission, and the performance will be followed by a reception and mixer in Cohn Hall.

The Glee Club will go to Dunbarton College to sing at a concert there on December 15. The club will also sing at St. Joseph's Hospital Nursing Home and a mixer will follow. They sing on December 28 for the patients of Perkins State Mental Hospital, and another hospital engagement, not yet scheduled will also be held.

Other Engagements

On December 4 the Glee Club will sing at a children's party sponsored by the Adversiting Club of Baltimore at the Sheraton-Belvedere Hotel. On Friday, December 15, they will meet on the Evergreen Chapel to make a recording which will be played on radio station WFBR.

NEW CHIEFS—The new freshman officers are (l. to r.) Messrs. Coyle, Keating, Miller and Scholtes. Absent is B. Vondersmith.

Editorial

No Control

At the Student Council meeting of November 17, Senior Class President Dick Moore introduced the following motion: "That the Student Council establish a Class Constitution Committee to consist of Messrs. Lawrence (Chairman), Duffy, Genovese, Copenhaver (Vice-presidents of their respective classes), and the incoming Vice-President of the Freshman class to consider the feasibility of drawing up a series of regulations to affect reasonable control of the classes by the Student Council; to draw up their recommendations, in the event that they consider regulations to be feasible and in order; and to present these recommendations to the Student Council in the form of a committee report not later than the first meeting of the Council in December." This motion was unfortunately passed by a majority, but not unanimous, vote.

In studying the above motion, various questions arose in our minds. The first question to be considered is how this committee will determine if such controls are feasible? The only possible solutions to this question would seem to be both of the following suggestions:

1. To have the Management Club conduct a poll of the entire student body after it was informed about the situation which could result from their assent to this measure. They should be told that, if the Council were to assume the power of overseer, many class functions such as parties, raffles, and meetings would be under the control of the Council.

2. To have the Committee meet with the Dean of Men in order to obtain his reactions to the assumption of many of his current powers by the Council. The result of this meeting would be very interesting!!

As is usual for most Council motions, the current motion contains a reason for its proposal. The reason stated is "to affect a reasonable control over the classes by the Student Council." First of all, this implies that the Dean of Men is either not doing his job at all or that he is doing his job but not with a "reasonable control." Secondly, since the term "reasonable control" is not defined, there are at least three possibilities which could exist. The first is that the Council would have complete control over the classes. This would, it seems, involve nothing but a transferal of power from one agency (Dean of Men) to another agency (the Student Council). Therefore, the situation would not be radically different from that which exists now, and this transferal of power does not necessarily guarantee any more of a "reasonable control" than exists at the present time.

A second possibility is that the Council and the Dean of Men would share this power over the classes. Of course, if this situation existed, there would be no final voice of authority. The final possibility would be that the Council could make decisions as to class activities and then submit them to the Dean of Men for approval. If this situation were allowed to exist, class functions would become even more involved than they presently are. Currently, the class officers go directly to the Dean of Men for approval of their activities; whereas, if this motion were put into law, the officers would have to get his approval through the Student Council--an unnecessary step!!

We oppose the control of the classes by the Student Council and feel that the elected officers of each class are, along with the Dean of Men, the best means of controlling the classes.

In conclusion, we urge the student body to do two things. First, consult your Council representative, talk to him about this motion, go to the first meeting of the Student Council in December when, according to the motion, this report will be given (and some action should be taken on it). This motion, if put into effect, will affect you throughout the rest of your stay at Loyola College. It is to your best interest to do everything in your power to prevent the passage of this motion or any other pice of legislation which will take any part of your somewhat limited power away from you. Each of you will be affected, so do not let the responsibility of preventing the passage of this motion rest on someone else's shoulders!! Each one of you should follow our suggestions and be sure that you will not give up your authority.

Play Review:

Caesar and Cleopatra

On last Friday and Saturday evenings, the Masque and Rapier Dramatic Society presented George Bernard Shaws "Caesar and Cleopatra." The production, directed by Martin Snyder, was an experience for all of the twenty-one actors involved. It was also a sharp deviation from the usual productions of the society in that the casting and set designs presented problems which were more difficult than had been experienced previously.

It must be said that the performance as a whole left much to be desired. However, there were many bright spots which managed to shine through the overall production. The performance of Miss Julie Platz as Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt, was nothing less than excellent. Beauty and talent are a rare combination which Miss Platz seems to have a fair share of. She has, in this (her first role of the year) made a strong bid for the "Best Actress" award.

In the role of Caesar, the aging emperor, was Ed Conery, a Junior English major. The winner of the "Best Actor" award last year, Ed has the ability to perform much better than he did on the stage the other night. Although his ease on stage both in manner and in speech were apparant, he was obviously guilty of playing the part too heavily, creating a melodramatic rather than a comic effect.

As Rufio, the Shield of Caesar, Dave Crocco, a veteran of many Loyola productions, was slightly less than impressive. Perhaps Dave hasn't been eating enough Italian food lately. The convincing Ftata-teeta was played by Ann McGeehan, who gave a consistently good performance. Other outstanding performers were Ron Zimmerer as Pothinus, Jerry Peters as Britannus, Pete Genovese as Theodotus, and Richard Hayden, of Loyola High, as Ptolemy.

Although there is general agreement that this production was dull and unimpressive, the hard work involved should not be overlooked. A poor production does not necessarily mirror the amount of time spent in its preparation. The play was not up to Society standards but was an experience which had both good and bad effects.

The Watchdog

The Watchdog enjoyed Loyola Nite. For those who were in it, here are a few comments. Dr. Kaltenbach really put on the dog. After the fine job, the Dog has no bone to pick with the Old Bassett. Dave Crocco proved that life as a parachutist has several strings attached. Stogie Clarke proved once again that he is the Winters of our discontent. In conclusion, after his performance on Wednesday night, we wonder with a wry (pronounced rye) grin, if our Bourbon is not bottled in bond after all.

At the Saturday performance of "Caesar and Cleopatra," we overheard one frosh enthusiast speaking to his mentor, "Col. Nelka, I don't know which I enjoy more, this play or drill."

We have just heard that Pete Genovese voted no several times for the Barber Shop. His relatives don't want any more competition!!!

Speaking of the Barber Shop, we were glad to see Tony Rivezzo back in school. We had heard that he was considering changing his major to B.S. Barbering. Coming from up North, he had hopes of coasting along as another Yankee Clipper.

Flash: The junior Political Science majors report that Marty Pilsch is the leading contender for this year's Ordonez award!!!

Sticks And Stones

Last Friday and Saturday nights, the Masque and Rapier Dramatics Society presented "Caesar and Cleopatra," a play of some renown by George Bernard Shaw, a playwright of some repute. The support given this production by the students of this college was, to say the least, disgusting and miserable.

Admittedly, the fact that last weekend was a holiday weekend may have been partially responsible for the poor turnout. However, the holiday weekend didn't keep a good portion of the students of this college away from Memorial Stadium for one or both of the Thanksgiving Day football games. It most certainly did not keep them away from Loyola Night on Thanksgiving Eve. Now, I don't mean to detract from these other social activities, especially Loyola Night, which is one of the very few times when the student body shows a little spirit and interest in their school by turning out en masse for a school function other than dances. But it strikes me as incongruous that the students of this college can fill Cohn Hall beyond its seating capacity every year to see acts almost totally unrehearsed, while these same students can leave the same Cohn Hall almost deserted two nights later when the dramatics society is producing entertainment which, regardless of its merits in comparison to previous society productions, is always of higher caliber than that of Loyola Night. Why should there be such tremendous difference in the amount of student support? "Caesar and Cleopatra" was just as much a product of the efforts of Loyola College students as was Loyola night. In fact, the time and effort that went into the play was so much greater that it seems almost unfair to speak of the two events in the same breath. Price certainly couldn't have been a factor--the play was cheaper for anyone bringing a date, and the same price as Loyola Night for anyone coming stag. And certainly the play was publicized enough. Posters had been appearing on campus since the middle of October announcing the date, time, and cost of the production. There doesn't seem to be any good reason, any excuse at all for the poor attendance of the students. Rather, this is just one more example of the disinterestedness and lack of school spirit on the part of the students of Loyola College as a whole!

Bird's Beat

Are you getting a college education? When you graduate will you be a college graduate? A recent national survey showed that only 10% of all college graduates had college educations.

A college education is not merely obtained by attending the required number of classes and doing enough work to "get by." The person working for a college education will have the initiative to do further research. He will also join several organizations in which he can not only learn things which are invaluable in class, but he can also learn how to handle himself better with his contemporaries and to handle other people. These last two things are things which can not be learned in class, but they are definitely qualities of a college graduate.

Another thing which prevents most people from having a college education is "culture." This is a field where most college graduates fail miserably. There are many performances each year here at Loyola which will add to your musical and dramatic knowledge. There are quite a few activities that take place here in Baltimore that would be worth while attending; for example, tonight and tomorrow night "Outward Bound" by Sigmund Venn will be performed at Notre Dame of Maryland at 8:30 P.M.

The official "Bird Watchers" for the week before last were all Juniors again. They were Pete Genovese, Adelio Maccentelli, and Hank McGraw.

Here is this week's quiz. Match the words in the first column to their synonyms in the second column, and put the answers in the space provided.

The beginning of the end for the Trujillo reign in the Dominican Republic began a year ago with the assassination of the long-time dictator, Raphael Trujillo. Social reforms and a democracy were promised by Raphael Jr., but his sudden departure and the departure of the Trujillo clan left the island in a state of chaos.

On Sunday, November 26, Chet Huntley reported on the situation in the Dominican Republic. This is the first time I have been disappointed in Mr. Huntley's presentation of the news.

As usual, the abuse of authority preceded an abuse of order. The people, many of whom looked like juvenile delinquents, looted, smashed and burned Trujillo family property. They chanted farewell, tooted plastic whistles and then expanded their energies on the many statues and plaques in remembrance of the late dictator.

The films of the NBC News Dept. were interesting, but Mr. Huntley's comments were not in keeping with his usual keen insight. The long hold of the Trujillo family was the reason for these mob actions, and were dismissed as a fair exchange by Mr. Huntley.

President Balaguer blames the riots on the Communists. If this is so, then the strength of the Party in the Republic must be phenomenal. In either case, I fear the result of a mob-run government.

Hound Hoopsters Play Host To Georgetown U. Here Tomorrow

by Bernie Vondersmitt

Tomorrow night at 8:45 in the Loyola College gym, the Hounds will officially open their basketball season against the Georgetown Hoyas. The Hoyas hope to improve on the 12-11 record which they posted last year. Their coach, Tom O'Keefe, is very optimistic. He feels that this will be the best Georgetown team since the 1953 squad of Buddy Jeanette which went on to the National Invitational Tournament. Returning letterman Jim Carrino (6' 3") will be playing in the front court again this season and he will be the Hoya's chief scoring threat. The big man for Georgetown is Bob Sharpenter (6' 6½") and he should prove a valuable asset to the Hoya's, especially with the year of starting experience which he now has under his belt. If Bob comes through as he is expected to, Georgetown will probably be rated among the top teams in the east. Paul Tagliabue (6' 5") is probably the best all-around player on the visitors' squad and he will also be a member of their starting five. Jay Force (6'), the other backcourt ace, saw a good deal of action for the team last season. Sophomore Jim Christie is looked upon as the replacement for the brilliant playmaker and scorer Puddy Sheehan, who graduated last year after sparking the Hoya's for the past three seasons. Coach O'Keefe is also figuring on a stronger bench than last year and his squad will also be doing more running.

Probable Greyhound starters will be Tony Torba, Jody Satterfield, Pat Flynn, Alex Cummings and Charlie O'Donnell.

The next home games after the Hoya's will be against Hofstra on Dec. 9, and against St. Francis on Dec. 15. Students are reminded to purchase their tickets for the Loyola Invitational by Dec. 15; after the 15th, students will have to pay full price for their tickets instead of the reduced student rate.

Intramurals

The Hamilton Rek and the Foul Bagels continue to play winning ball as the Touch Football League comes into its final games.

Recent Games

Six games have been played in the last two weeks. On November 15, the Sharks and the Jr. Science Majors were winners. The Sharks were victorious in a scoreless tie game by penetrations. Crac made an outstanding play when he ran the width of the field to stop lamieri who was on his way to a sure touchdown, to preserve the win for the Sharks. In the other game, the Vikings forfeited to the Junior Science Majors.

In the other games, the Debts lost to the Foul Bagels on penetrations, after the game ended in a 6 to 6 tie. The Debts got their score on an O'Keefe to Nosker pass, and a Lamar to Burns pass scored for the Foul Bagels. The Hamilton Rek beat the Dukes 20 to 6. Ray, Stewart, and Voith starred for the Rek.

Last Wednesday the Hot Shots topped the Jr. Science Majors 12 to 0. Lucas and Becker scored for the Hot Shots. Donnellan led the 1.5 to victory over the Sharks in the finale.

Frampton Wins Mason Dixon X-Country Title

On November 18th, the Hound cross-country team wound up its season with a respectable 5th place finish in the M-D Championships. Rick Frampton repeated as individual champion and Bridgewater took the team title, also for the second straight year.

Frampton, without doubt the best harrier in Loyola history, won with comparative ease, finishing 100-yards ahead of his nearest rival. Last year, Rick rocked the M-D Conference with his almost weekly record smashing efforts. This season he reached new heights as he ran two meets over the Loyola course in better than 16 minutes, a feat never before accomplished. The first time was against a strong Morgan College team and the second came in the Loyola Invitational, providing a new official course record. Counting his victory in the finals, Rick now has a string of 17 straight triumphs and two undefeated seasons.

The team as a whole had a very successful season, posting a 5-1-1 log in dual meet competition. The only loss came at the hands of Mt. St. Mary's 26-30. The victories were over Towson, 25-31, C.U., 20-36, Hopkins, 20-37, Washington, 16-45, and Lynchburg, 23-32. The tie was with Roanoke College, 28-28.

Swimming Season Opens Dec. 15

This year's varsity swimming team, under the tutelage of Bill Klarner, opens its season on Dec. 15 against St. Peter's. The tankmen, after losing nine stalwarts from last year's team including Charlie Bree and Pete Powley, still have a nucleus of seasoned veterans and coach Klarner predicts that by midseason, his squad will reach last year's peak.

The main cogs of this season's squad are Junior Jim Burns, M-D champion freestyler Marty Pilsch, Ken Freimuth, the team's top scorer, and diver Vic Corbin. The coach is especially high on Corbin, saying that he wouldn't trade his diver for any in the Conference.

The 1961-62 schedule has seen the addition of V.M.I., West Chester State, and Akron while Fordham, which was scheduled to visit here, has been dropped because of its earlier Conference commitments.

The Coach claims that this season's squad is weaker than last year's because of a lack of depth and sprinters. Loyola will be favored in the opener in view of its 100-28 conquest of St. Peter's last year.

Vic Corbin

Rifle Team

As the Loyola Rifle Team prepares to fire against Georgetown University in Washington today, they have compiled a dual match record of two wins and one defeat, having defeated Dickinson College and Howard University, while losing to Western Maryland. They have split their two postal matches to date, downing Central State College of Ohio 1363-1334, while dropping a contest to Loyola of New Orleans 1388-1344. They have fired in the Hearst International Matches, but the results have not yet been received.

Team Captain Dennis Homburg and Paul Schlick have been the top marksmen, while Freshman Tom Nooney has been a pleasant surprise. The loss of Butch Emmett to the wrestling team and Bill Miller to studies have hurt considerably. Despite these handicaps however, the rifle team has held their own against some still opposition.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

by Tom Kenney

Among the most inconspicuous workers around the Loyola campus are the managers of the various Hound athletic teams. Athletes and managers alike put in long, hard hours of work. However, for the most part the athletes gain their deserved recognition while the manager achieves little acclaim although he is equally deserving.

Managers have a variety of duties. They must see that equipment is cared for and ready when needed. Records and statistics must be kept. Numerous other little odd and tedious tasks fall to the manager because no one else feels like doing them.

However it would be wrong to say that managers do their job with no hope of reward. The fact is that they are satisfied merely by the feeling of a job well done rather than by public recognition. This is a very humble and generous attitude, one worthy of imitation.

If there is any doubt about a manager's value to a team, let the athletes and coaches try to get along without him, even for a short time. His absence would point up the deserving efforts of the typical team manager.

Voice in Government

As president of the Loyola College Athletic Association, Jim Kennedy holds a seat on the Student Council. He holds this seat for the purpose of representing the Hound athletes' interests. Jim welcomes any suggestions or complaints which any of his constituents might care to make.

Mat Squad Has Returning Vets

The big problem presently facing wrestling coach Charley Carey is the lack of seasoned performers in the 191 lb. and heavyweight classes. The Hound team has experienced men in all of the other weights. At 123 lbs., Senior Bill Lampieri, a four year veteran, holds forth, Junior Buck McCarthy appears set as the Hound's 130 pounder. In the 138 lb. class, Soph Alex Schlipp, last year's Conference champ at that weight, again seems ready for a strong season. Sophomores Butch Emmett and Tom Milligan return at 147 and 167 lbs. respectively. In the 157 and 177 lb. classes, Seniors Mike Buchness and Charlie Graham, the team captain, are both first rate grapplers.

Promising Newcomers

Several Freshmen appear to have a good chance of breaking into the Hound lineup. Bishop Baker, a lightweight from St. Joe, has looked sharp in workouts as has Colon Delphi, a 177 pounder also from St. Joe. Other promising Freshmen are Leo Blair and Bill LeFevre. The Hound matmen will open on Jan. 6 against Hopkins.
